Translation and Public Policy

Interdisciplinary Perspectives and Case Studies

Edited by Gabriel González Núñez, Assistant Professor of Translation and Interpreting at The University of Texas Rio Grande Valley and Reine Meylaerts, Professor of Comparative Literature and Translation Studies at KU Leuven.

Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies

This innovative volume highlights the key theoretical discussions at the forefront of the emerging field of research on translation policy. The book lays out different theoretical frameworks for the study of translation policy and takes into account various contexts in which translation policy comes into play, including linguistic justice, language planning and language policy, interpreting in the higher education system, policy evaluation, and translation and the law. This book is a fundamental resource for students and scholars interested in translation and interpreting studies and issues concerning language policy and linguistic diversity.
